Fifty Are Taken From Various Cemeteries in Bucks County

OVER 20 STOLEN HERE

Penna. Motor Police and Registrar of Graves Are Making An Investigation

One of the most despicable things imaginable—the theft of 50 bronze markers from the graves of Bucks county veterans—is being investigated by the Pennsylvania Motor Police and Registrar of Graves William M. Murphy, of Doylestown. The markers were stolen from graves in various sections of the county.

More than 20 of these markers were stolen from two cemeteries in Bristol and 18 more were stolen from Thompson Memorial Presbyterian Church cemetery at Brownsburg and from the Selsby Friends' Burying Grounds.

The Bucks County Commissioners purchased the markers to provide identification of the graves of hundreds of veterans of all wars, buried in Bucks county. It is largely by means of the markers that persons in charge of the decoration of graves, located the graves of the veterans, and without them it is difficult to distinguish the burial places in many instances.

It is the theory of the police that the markers, most of them stolen from cemeteries along the Delaware River section, have been taken to New Jersey and sold as junk. On the back of each marker is engraved the name of the veteran.

Police would be glad to hear from anyone with information concerning the stolen markers.

FARMERS BEHIND IN PLANTING OF CORN

That Which Was Planted
Early Has Made Little Progress

GRAINS REPORTED GOOD

Corn planting has been delayed in this area due to the cold weather and the rain. Farmers say that they have been held up in their planting of corn two and three weeks. If weather conditions permit this week, they plan to work at top speed and make up for the time lost.

Speaking of the situation, County Agent William F. Greenawalt, Doylestown, said ordinarily the corn is planted during the last two weeks in May, but this year soil conditions brought about by the wet weather made it impossible to get on the fields.

Whether farmers who succeeded in getting their corn planted before the wet weather are ahead of the game remains a question. Mr. Greenawalt said that corn which was planted during the middle of May or even earlier practically stood still and turned yellow during the wet and cold spell. There is a possibility that the corn planted later will catch up to that which was planted earlier in the season.

Most of the corn ground, said Mr. Greenawalt, has been plowed, but the preparation of the seed bed, he said, in many cases has not been completed. Some farmers planted corn during the past week, and during the current week, if weather conditions permit, they will devote most of their time to this work.

Oats sowing, said Mr. Greenawalt, was delayed at least a month because of the weather, and the outcome of the crop will depend largely upon weather conditions during the next six weeks.

Many of the farmers during the week will also harvest the first cutting of alfalfa.

Although the wet and cold weather during the latter part of May caused the farmers to have many setbacks, it was beneficial to the barley, rye, wheat and grass, all of which appear to be in an excellent condition.

Truckers in the lower part of the county have about completed the harvest of asparagus, spinach and rhubarb, all of which also were benefitted by the wet weather. Pastures throughout the county also appear to be in good condition.

Truckers will begin turning their attention to the Mexican bean beetle which has lost no time in making its appearance.

JUDGE BOYER TELLS OF THE DUTIES OF JURORS

Addresses Members of Lower Bucks County Council of Republican Women

PROBLEMS CONSIDERED

The meeting of the Lower Bucks County Council of Republican Women was held last evening in the Travel Club Home. The meeting was opened with the singing of "America," followed by the pledge of allegiance to the flag, led by Mrs. Dorothy Fechtenburg.

Mrs. Harry Frederick, president of the council, introduced to the assembled members, Judge Calvin S. Boyer, of the Bucks county court, Doylestown, who was the speaker of the evening.

Judge Boyer chose as his topic, "The Problems and Duties of Jurors." Addressing an audience, more than half of whom have served on juries, Judge Boyer said: "Sometimes jurors want to know how and why they are chosen."

"Two county officials, called jury commissioners, elect a jury, which in the case of jurors is done about once a year. The names for jury eligibility are received from various prominent and responsible men, such as justices of the peace and other men who know a good majority of the people in their respective communities. They are usually asked to send a list of ten prospective jurors—five men and five women; people whom they think would be suitable for jury duty. They must be of good repute, honest, good character, and intelligent—not necessarily with a college degree, but naturally intelligent. Physical capabilities have a great deal to do with the selection of a juror. One having small children should not be selected, or those having the care of an invalid, or one whose hearing is defective.

"In comparing Bucks County juries with those of other counties, I find that our Bucks County juries in intelligence, ideals and standards of character. Every now and then we get an unfit juror, but that doesn't happen very often.

"Beginning alphabetically with each election district, the stenographer takes down address and occupation of the individuals suggested; the persons are discussed at length as to their eligibility for jury duty and it takes one full week to complete this work. About 1200 to 1500 names are chosen, carefully, to be put in the jury wheel. "The last or next to the last week in November of each year a slip with each person's name on it is placed in a plain envelope and sealed, and no one knows whose name is in the envelope. These are put into the jury wheel. The wheel is sealed with adhesive and wax on which is imprinted the Sheriff's initials.

"When jurors are needed, the envelopes are taken out one after another (after being thoroughly mixed) until 72 names are secured. Seventy-two names are picked for the first week, and another 72 for the second. A list is made of the names of all jurors and one list is given to the Sheriff, another to the Judge, and two lists are published in prominent public places so that anyone may view them. Usually only names for the first week are necessary, so if the second week's jury is not needed, these jurors' names are replaced in the wheel to be eligible for duty the next time jurors are picked. If at the end of one year there are 500 names left in the jury wheel, these names go back for the next year's selection.

"Another question frequently asked by women is 'How do you find women jurors? Are they as satisfactory as men jurors?' My answer is a complimentary one because I served at the bar when they had only men jurors. I was district attorney when they had men jurors, and during these years I have had ample opportunity to make comparisons; and from what we see and from what we hear of the attitude of women jurors, I would say, taken all in all, they are a good deal more conscientious than men jurors. They are more willing to listen to instructions; and to the arguments of the lawyers. Men are not quite as conscientious in this respect. When a case involves some principle or charge they have personal views on, they are apt to let that interfere with their decision.

Reims and Rouen Fall

Berlin, June 12.—The cities of Reims and Rouen, sentinel towers in the defense of Paris have fallen into German hands and Nazi troops are now only 12½ miles from the capital, German military authorities asserted today.

With the Seine crossed and the Marne attempted, Nazi Germany's ring around Paris is beginning to close and Berlin began to wonder whether the French would sacrifice their city rather than surrender.

German authorities waited for word that the Nazis had reached Versailles, where 21 years ago the World War peace treaty was signed.

French Withdraw

Paris, June 12.—The French army surrounding Paris withdrew to the very outskirts of the capital today, to defend the city against the greatest attack of its long history. From the west, east and north, the defenders fell back to prepared positions.

(Editor's note: The Germans announced capture of Rouen, cutting off Paris from Le Havre.)

The heaviest fighting of the war is now under way at Senlis, 33 miles from the Eiffel Tower. Senlis became Marshall Foch's headquarters in 1918. It was the closest point to Paris that the Germans ever attained in their conflict. To the east of Paris, the French have now fallen back of the Marne, scene of the great battle of 1918 and 1918.

EDGELY

The following Edgely Boy Scouts enjoyed a week-end camping trip at New Galena: Gerald Walterick, Philip Manherz, Robert Abrams, Walter Rittler, patrol leader Robert Swangler, Steven Osereduk, Franklin Wolfinger, Charles Worthington, Milton Livesey, patrol leader Stanley Worthington, Scoutmaster Clyde Nash. The Scouts also had initiation on Monday evening in Union Chapel. Those initiated as tenderfoots are: Gerald Walterick, Walter Rittler, Franklin Wolfinger, and Chas. Worthington. Robert Abrams received his second class pin, Philip Manherz and Robert Swangler, five year service pins; and Robert Abrams received his third year pin. Pins were presented by Raymond Sheldon.

TO ENFORCE ORDINANCE AIMED AT "LOAFERS"

Langhorne Borough Council
Will Back Action Taken
In October of 1936

HAD MANY COMPLAINTS

LANGHORNE, June 12.—Loafing lounging and congregating along public streets and on borough property is to be prohibited in Langhorne borough.

Such action was taken at a meeting of Langhorne borough council, it being a decision to enforce an ordinance passed by that body in October of 1936.

Council took its action following the complaints of several local residents. Particular attention is being directed against loafing on street corners at the intersection of Bellevue and Maple avenues and in the park by the community house.

Burgess Mather stated that complaints have been made against the language used by persons frequenting these places.

Attention has also been called to the fact that children have been using the recently purchased property at the rear of the town hall facing on Richardson avenue, for a ball field. This also comes in for enforcement under the ordinance.

While attention has been directed particularly to these points, the ordinance will be enforced throughout the borough on all streets and borough property. Arrangements have been made with the police for the proper enforcement of the law. The penalty for conviction of violating this act is punishable by a fine of not more than ten dollars or in default of the fine a sentence of one day in the County Jail for each dollar of the fine.

Lad Receives Award While Patient In Hospital

A patient in the Nazareth Hospital, Philadelphia, where he is recuperating from an operation performed a week previous, was presented last evening with the American Legion pin which was awarded to him at the Bensalem Township commencement exercises last Tuesday evening.

The recipient of the award is W. LeRoy Johnston, who has completed the eighth grade course at Bensalem schools. The lad was unable to be at the exercises, due to his operation that day.

However three members of the Robert W. Bracken Post, 382, American Legion, visited him in the hospital, last evening, and formally presented the award for honor, character and other attributes. Those in the party making the presentation included: the Rev. Arthur F. Gibson, Eddington, post chaplain; Fred Bryner, Joseph Schreiber, Jr., and Mrs. Gibson.

Congress Should Not Quit

Washington, June 11.

AS the war grows more violent the pressure upon Congress to stay in session gains strength. The reason for this is that as the need for the country to arm itself becomes more obvious the difficulties of doing so stand out more clearly.

FOR example, it is being increasingly realized that the "financial responsibility" for the vast armament program is of vital importance. That responsibility has got to be shouldered by Congress. It is imperative that it be dealt with adequately and intelligently. It is not being dealt with that way, for two reasons—one is that financial leadership is not being supplied by the Administration; the other, that Administration leaders are trying to force an adjournment of Congress by June 22.

SO far as the first is concerned, Mr. Roosevelt has evinced only a belated interest in the necessity for increasing taxes and no great enthusiasm for the sort of economy for which the situation clearly calls. It has been made evident that if adequate tax legislation and economy are to accompany appropriation of the defense billions, the initiative will have to come from Congress and not the White House. Yet hardly anyone disputes that without much higher taxes and much deeper cuts than are now proposed the defense program cannot be put in operation without internal peril as great as any which we fear from outside.

WHILE in every informed quarter the billion-dollar tax bill, now started on its way in the House, is regarded as inadequate, it of

TWO YOUTHS DROWN AS THEIR BOAT UPSETS IN SILVER LAKE, HERE, SHORTLY BEFORE NOON TODAY; BODIES RECOVERED

Michael De Palma, 17, Corson Street, and Francis Gallagher, 11, Corson Street, First Victims of Lake Since Its Rehabilitation Under A WPA Project — Crowds Watch Attempts at Rescue From Banks of Lake.

Two boys were drowned in Silver Lake shortly before noon today.

The victims: Michael De Palma, 17, Corson street, Francis Gallagher, aged 11 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Gallagher, Corson street.

Gallagher's body was not recovered until 11.50, and although regarded almost as hopeless, attempt at resuscitation was started immediately.

The accident occurred at about 10.45 and the first body was recovered at about 11.15.

First to reach the two, whose small kayak had upset, were Anthony Muccie, 307 Lincoln avenue; and Thomas Meyers, Croydon. Muccie states that he attempted to aid the Gallagher boy, smaller of the two, but when a "strangle hold" was gained by the drowning lad, Muccie stated he was forced to break the hold in order to save himself. Close behind Muccie in the rescue attempt was Meyers, but he was unable to aid either of the boys before they went down. It is said that DePalma had attempted to save the Gallagher boy, but he too was drowned.

Workmen on the lake banks summoned aid, and Chief of Police Jones; Dr. James P. Lawler, deputy coroner of Bucks county; and other groups were soon there to aid.

Grapplers dragged the lake for a period of time, and the body of Gallagher was recovered at 11.50. Attempts were also made to revive him, but the lad had been in the water for over an hour.

This, a double tragedy, is the first that has occurred at Silver Lake since it was made available to the public as a new project.

The two boys had been rowing and drifting about the lake all morning and suddenly became interested in pulling candocks, just off the north point of the "island." WPA workmen, under the supervision of John F. Smoyer, were at work on the grounds surrounding the lake, which are being graded.

Cries attracted the attention of the workmen and then others along the banks informed them that two boys had turned over in what was described as a "home-made" boat.

Chief Jones and police and firemen from Bristol, Bucks County Rescue Squad, and firemen from Croydon responded to the call for help. Hundreds of persons attracted to the scene crowded along the shore as several boats in which were crews of men equipped with grappling hooks, and others, just swimmers, went to the rescue.

The first body pulled ashore was that of De Palma, and the body was located by a boat in which were Joseph Burns, Edward Crossan and two WPA workmen.

The body of De Palma was stretched out on the ground in a hollow square of people. The people were kept back, so that the rescuers could work, by parking automobile at right angles.

Members of the Croydon unit of the Bucks County Rescue Squad, under the supervision of Jesse Carr, worked heroically in an attempt to revive De Palma.

Mr. Smoyer said that he had seen the boys in their boat on the lake but that he was at the upper end at a considerable distance from them. He said that his men had told the boys, earlier during the morning, to stop pulling the candocks as they would make it harder for them to pull out the growth, later.

The two boys went down in about eight feet of water and were quite a distance from the area where the bathing beaches are located and where the water is only about four feet deep.

ITALY JOINS THE MENACE

Italy's entrance into the war increases the odds against the Allies, already formidable, to an alarming extent. The only note of optimism to be heard now is based on Italy's record in the first World War, during which the "exploits" of her army bordered on comic opera.

But for twenty years—ever since he seized control of the Italian government—Mussolini has been striving mightily to convert Italians into good cannon fodder, and the mechanization and size of the Italian army has progressed year by year. As there was no possibility of internal eventualities in the nation requiring large armed forces—all opposition to dictatorship having been ruthlessly suppressed—and no nations had designs upon Italy, there was only one object in this militarization of the country. The object was conquest.

The fact that the "decree of democracies," as Mussolini contemptuously termed the Allies in his speech declaring war (in "decree democracies," it should be added, Mussolini included the United States) were hard-pressed is what gave Mussolini the courage to stab them in the back. How much damage his stiletto can do will be soon apparent, but unless his thrust can be effectively blocked at once, the gravity of the situation cannot be overstated.

So rapidly is the war moving to a great climax that the most herculean efforts are called for in this nation's preparations for defense. Not a day, not an hour, is to be lost. The United States needs planes, tanks, arms and men in abundance—and it needs them now, not six months or one month hence.

The time for action is at hand, and it must be action more swift and more stupendous than that which has accompanied great crises in the past.

The time to show Hitler and Mussolini that this is not a "decree democracy" has arrived, and they must be shown in actions that they can understand. This is America's hour, and the manner in which the New World meets the test will determine the future of civilization more surely than will the trifle events now transpiring on European battlefields.

The Mexican government announced last week that it had set aside for $8,500,000 the expropriation claims of the Sinclair oil group, which appears to be correct with the trifling exception that the oil group didn't get the money.

A Kansas newspaper gal says if anybody around town kids her about her age she is not going to stop to argue, she is going to louse out, find the census man and give him a darn good licking.

The Nazis have decreed no breathing spell for the Allies. But if the Allies finally win, and allow breathing spell for the Allies. But they're crazy.

Now it is said Hitler got his war strategy from America. Where he got his hair cut and mustache trim is still a mystery.

Note of Cheer: During the fortnight of mimic warfare recently in Hawaii our forces succeeded in routing imaginary parachute troops trying to make a landing. Not a theoretical parachutist hit the ground alive.

NEWS BRIEFS FROM SUBURBAN TOWNS

course is better than the original Administration plan, which was to pass the whole question of taxes over until after the election. However, in the Senate, Senator Byrd, Senator Tydings and others will make a fight to increase rates of the House bill at least fifty per cent. At the same time the Byrd resolution to cut by ten per cent. all Government expenses, including salaries above $3,000, will be urged.

FOUR years ago, with no thought of war, Mr. Byrd and a good many others began urging more taxes and real economy to keep the nation from disastrous insolvency and halt the continuous deficit financing against which Mr. Roosevelt himself, in 1932, warned as a great national danger, but which steadily continued to grow each year since. If eight years ago, when the national debt was sixteen billion, and four years ago, when it was thirty-two billion—if then there was great national risk in continued borrowing without compensating economy and taxes, how much greater is the danger today, when the debt exceeds forty-five billion and the necessity of expending billions more is conceded!

UNDER these circumstances, it is

TITAN TOWER" by JAMES G. CHESNUTT

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

Much had happened since Linda had fainted in the emergency hospital of Titan Tower.

Linda's fainting had served to stop any fight which might have ensued between the two doctors. But, Linda had learned shortly afterward, Dr. Renquist had stomped into the office of Dr. Francis Carter Vance, himself, and had resigned on the spot.

Steve, both hands swathed in bandages, had been taken home by Merry Blaine, an utterly contrite Merry, who was extremely solicitous and anxious to do anything to make amends for the result of her thoughtlessness.

What Merry did, however, was to make matters worse. Not knowing of the condition of Aunt Cynthia, Merry had bluntly broken the news to the aged blind woman, and Steve's accident had come as a shock which prostrated his aunt.

Although she joked about it, Jo—and Janice, too—knew that Linda's collapse in the emergency hospital of Titan Tower was nothing to be taken lightly. When Linda explained that she was "tired," she was guilty of understatement. She needed a rest—badly.

"Lin, chile," Jo said, "why don't you take up your chum, old Mr. Avon, on that offer to let you have his shack over at Boulder Creek. You could have a week's quiet rest—and you could use it."

"But what about Mickey?" Linda protested. "I can't leave him again—I WON'T!"

"Take him along, honey," Janice put in. "He'll be company for you." The girls' arguments won out over Linda's feeble protests. She asked Dr. Thorpe if she could have a week off, which was readily granted. She didn't have to ask Mr. Avon for the use of his summer cottage. He suggested it again, the next day at lunch.

Mr. Avon insisted upon driving Linda and Mickey to his mountain place, upon leaving his car with Linda and returning to San Francisco by train.

Then began for Linda and Mickey a delightful six days alone in a little cottage by a brook, surrounded by towering trees, with nothing to do but rest and play and picnic every day. It was a dream existence in a dream cottage that was mostly huge stone fireplace, surrounded by a few comfortably-fitted rooms, with walls of logs.

But what was happening to that dream, while Linda and Mickey were enjoying it together Linda didn't imagine—and Mickey wouldn't have understood, had he known.

"JAN!" Jo Monroe exploded bursting into Janice's office three days later, with about the same amount of warning given by an aerial bomb. "Jan, I've found out!"

"What?" It was all Janice could manage.

"You know that little black shadow that's been sitting on the bench in the lobby, like a frog on a gravestone?"

"Yes—who is he, do you know?" "I'll say I know! He was just in the office to see Anderson. Why, that little whoozis is a 'tail' from Chicago—a sluth, a snooper. And guess why he's been here, hanging around the lobby?"

Jo answered, before Janice could have, even if she had known the answer.

"He's been watching LINDA!"

"No!" Janice didn't understand. "But yes!" Jo went on. "He's been hired by the old Richwicks Mortons, Mickey's grandparents. Jan, honey, they're trying to take Linda's boy away from her!"

"Jo, they CAN'T!"

"I don't know if they can, honey, but they WILL, if I know that G-wizard G-man I work for. Little Whoozis in the lobby has been following Linda, after he tagged her from that picture that ran in the paper—you know, with your coat—when she flew down to the shore while Mickey was sick. Linda'd better watch her step. They're out to get her and they've got the best fighter on their side—Mr. Dough!"

"Oh," gasped Janice. "Isn't it awful! What can we do?"

Later, long after Jo had gone, with Janice's question still unanswered, Janice sat by her typewriter, work forgotten, and tried to piece out the answer.

And suddenly the answer came to her. It was a difficult decision to make, a decision made at the cost of tears and inner turmoil, but once her mind was made up, Janice was determined to go through with it.

That's how she happened to be seated in a waiting room of the lavish suite of offices tenanted by Al Lawson, the attorney-politician, and his associates.

When the receptionist said, "Mr. Blaine will see you now, Miss Marberry," Janice took a deep breath, steeled herself and walked, as poised as she could be under the circumstances, into the office of Jack Blaine.

"How do you do?" Blaine (who resembled his brother Bill only in wavy blond hair and clear blue eyes) said formally as he rose from his chair.

But when the receptionist had closed the door, and Janice stood there before his desk, uneasy and strange, he strode quickly to her side, anxiety in his eyes.

"Jan, dear," he said, "what's wrong? Why in the world . . . ?"

"I know I shouldn't have come here," she said, with a futile gesture. "But I had to go to someone for advice and help. I wouldn't have come if it wasn't so terribly important. You're the only one I have in the world, Jack. It's . . . it's about Linda. They're going to take her baby away from her."

"Yes," Blaine said, in a strange voice. "I know."

"You KNOW?" Janice was incredulous. "How could you . . . ?"

"Jan," he said, and his face had the look of a man accused of striking his own mother, "Jan—I'm on the other side."

For an elastic minute which seemed to stretch into many more, Janice just looked at Jack Blaine, dumbfounded.

"You . . . you're what?" she managed to say, shaking her head dazedly from side to side.

"I'm sorry, Jan," Blaine said, "but I can't help this time. I'm working against Linda—and . . ."

"And against me, Jack?" Janice finished for him.

"Don't put it that way, Jan," Blaine said, obviously hurt. "It isn't that I want to do it; to try to take Linda's child away from her. Mr. Lawson always has represented the Bradley Morton interests on the coast. And when they determined to make a fight for the custody of their son's boy, they called on him. And when Mr. Lawson called me in on the case . . ."

"When mighty Lawson cracks the whip, little Jack jumps!"

That didn't sound as though Janice . . . demure, retiring, little Jan . . . could have said it. But she did. This was a new Janice.

"But Jan!" Jack Blaine was genuinely pained. "You don't understand. There's such a thing as duty. . . I can't pick and choose the cases I handle and I can't turn them down, even . . . even if my action hurts someone who means everything to me."

"Duty!" Janice said in a flat voice. "Haven't you any duty to your own conscience . . . to what you know is right?"

"Can you call it duty," she continued, her voice quivering emotionally, "to fight, with money and power, a poor girl who has nothing but the baby you're trying to take away from her? To tear her very heart out to gratify your sense of duty?"

The tears, which Janice had been fighting to hold back, had won out. She was crying brokenly.

"Oh, Jack, dear," she sobbed. "This isn't the way things should be—this shouldn't be happening to . . . to us. Not U.S. Jack. Not the way we've loved each other. I've loved you completely, trustingly, blindly—without questioning duty to myself or anyone. I've done everything you've told me; kept our secret because of your folks; waited for the time we could be married, when you have your own practice."

"I know, Jan," he said quietly. His face was flushed.

"Jack, you know I'd DIE rather than ask you to put aside your duty to help me, unless it meant something more to me, even than . . . us. I know now that Linda's happiness means more than anything in the world. Won't you help her, Jack?"

"Jan, I . . . he couldn't say it. He shrugged his shoulders and stared fixedly at the rug under his feet.

"I'm sorry," he said finally, without looking up.

Janice was so broken, so stunned that she didn't know herself what she said next. It was as though she were talking to herself, struggling, seeking some way out.

"There's Mr. Avon," she said, as he'd said to help Linda. She's at his place in the mountains now. Maybe he'd loan her the money for a lawyer. . . ."

"Who is Mr. Avon?" Jack Blaine was looking at Janice now, intently.

"Why, he's the man Linda . . . Janice, realizing what she had said, gladly would have bitten off her tongue if that would have recalled the words, "Jack Blaine," she gasped, eyes wide, "you wouldn't turn an innocent thing like that into something bad, just to . . . you WOULDN'T!"

John Ralston Blaine, Jr. ("Mr. Avon's" second son—unknown to him)—didn't say whether he would or would not.

madness not to couple financial preparedness with defense armament. The second depends upon the first. The second cannot be achieved without the first. The money must be appropriated by Congress, but it comes from the people just the same. It is a stupid and terrible thing to think that we can borrow fresh billions on top of all the others without imposing huge sacrifices upon the people in the form of taxes. It is stupid and terrible not to realize, too, that the people understand the necessity and are prepared to pay taxes, ready to accept without grumbling any kind of adequate and intelligent tax bill.

NO one who understands the great change in the sentiment of the country in the last month can doubt that the people are willing to pay the bill and that the politicians who fear resentment at taxes imposed before an election misjudge their character. If Congress is to be rushed into an adjournment in ten days, this question of financial preparedness cannot be properly considered. The Byrd proposal, of course, is better than the House bill, but Senator Byrd himself regards it as temporary and puts it forward now because of the urgent need not to let this Congress die without some action.

WHAT he suggests is a committee that for the next six months will study the tax problem with the view to presenting to the new Congress a proposal to revise our whole tax structure so as to enable us to carry, without bogging down, the tremendous additional financial burden which defense will impose. If that isn't vital, then nothing is. Congress, of course, can pass such a bill and name such a committee within ten days. But without wholehearted Administration support, which is not now indicated, an unsatisfactory measure is more apt to get through than not. And there will be no time to develop public understanding and sentiment. But, even if a fair temporary tax bill can be passed in ten days, little else can be done.

THE chances are that the controversial and important measures, such as the Walter Logan bill, the amended Hatch Act, the amendments to the Wagner Act, and the Wage and Hour Act, will all go over without action. These are matters of importance. They should be acted upon before adjournment, but they will not be if adjournment comes by June 22. As Senator Tydings pointed out yesterday, there is no excuse for adjournment. Congress ought to deal with the tax question without being rushed. And it is wicker to avoid action upon many pending bills. In addition, with the war in its most menacing stage, issues may arise any day that will require swift Congressional action. It isn't enough for the President to promise to call Congress back "if the emergency arises." Congress should stay on the job. There just isn't any reason to make it quit, which is exactly what the Administration is trying to do.

LOOKING FORWARD

By Franklyn Waltman

Publicity Director, Republican National Committee

For several weeks the whisper squad of the Democratic National Committee and the New Deal palace guards have been setting off rumors to the effect that the Republicans intend to postpone their National Convention, scheduled to start at Philadelphia on June 24.

Of course there is not a word of truth in these whispered rumors. But it is interesting to explore the reasons why the Democrats seem so anxious to have the Republican Convention postponed. Obviously the New Dealers are attempting to bolster up the courage of their followers by this fanciful effort to make it appear that Republicans are uncertain of the course they wish to pursue.

But there is a more subtle purpose underneath these New Deal whispers. Actually the New Deal whispers are based on wishful thinking. If the Republican Convention could be postponed that would give the New Dealers justification for postponing their Convention—or perhaps calling it off altogether.

Indeed, there is no genuine reason why there should be a Democratic National Convention this year. Just as in 1936, the duly elected delegates will be nothing more than stooges—window dressing, if you please—for giving a semblance of legality to plans determined by the White House. Mr. Roosevelt's patronage machine, with billions from the Treasury, already has made certain his iron-fisted control of the Convention. Thus he is able to renominate himself for the unprecedented third term, to dictate his running mate and to write any kind of platform he desires.

If proof of this contention were needed, it is given to us by John O'Donnell and Doris Fleenon, the Washington correspondents of the New Deal New York Daily News. These two correspondents are great admirers of Mr. Roosevelt and the New Deal. They frequently reflect the thinking that goes on in the White House's inner circle.

This is what they have just reported to their newspapers:

"Franklin D. Roosevelt of Hyde Park, N. Y., and James Francis Byrnes of Spartanburg, S. C., will be named by ACCLAMATION to head the Democratic tickets when the delegates assemble for their national convention in Chicago during the week of July 15. "The nominations will be first-ballot. New Deal blitzkrieg! Orders for the political panzertruppen of the regimented faithful have been worked out to the final detail—even to the new marching song. Mr. Roosevelt's old 'Happy Days Are Here Again' has been ditched because of the international situation, and gives way in the '40 campaign to the lilting 'Franklin D. Roosevelt Jones.'"

This pair of New Deal writers further report that arrangements have been made for the President to accept his UNANIMOUS nomination by long distance telephone, speaking from the White House!

Acceptance of the nomination by long distance telephone would certainly be the appropriate ending of such a "New Deal blitzkrieg." It would mark Mr. Roosevelt's deserved contempt for what Miss Fleenon and Mr. O'Donnell term the "political panzertruppen of the regimented faithful."

But why should the delegates to the Democratic National Convention waste time and money even going to Chicago, in view of the program already worked out for them aboard Mr. Roosevelt's yacht. It would appear from the O'Donnell-Fleenon story that no dissenting voice will be permitted in the Convention. So if the nomination must be by acclamation, why should not the delegates be permitted to send postal cards marked in big letters with the word "JA." That is the way Hitler, does it.

CANNING BUDGET IS GREAT AID AS THE SEASON APPROACHES

By Miss Edna Stephany

(Home Economics Representative)
A canning budget is a big help in getting ready for the canning season. Records of the canned foods used last year will be helpful. But if you don't have such records, you can start now to keep some for future use. If there's a family garden, it should be planted to supply the fruits and vegetables for canning, and still leave plenty for daily use while fresh.

After the canning budget is made, it's time to check on the supply of jars or cans. Inspect glass jars carefully, and discard any that are cracked or chipped. If the jars are the lightning type with glass tops, see that the wire clamps fit tightly. If they have become loosened, remove the top wire and bend it down in the middle. If

MAY TIME SAVER

In the busy month of May a great many new responsibilities besides the toddler's diet claim mother's attention, and she can be more than ever glad that junior foods offer their assistance. Thus she may, without any qualms, have older brothers and sisters prepare some of junior's meals while she is busy gardening or getting their clothes ready for outings.

Junior foods are canned fruits, meats, vegetables and desserts prepared especially for babies around 12 months of age who the doctor says are ready for coarser foods that will give them reason to do a little chewing. They eliminate the tedious duties involved in cooking and chopping the fresh vegetables and fruits when mother has enough to do to give her grown-ups their three squares a day. Twelve varieties of junior foods come completely prepared so that all one has to do when giving junior the vitamins and minerals characteristic of these foods is to heat and serve.

These nutritious foods, you will find, also make it easier to guide the toddler through the difficult period when he is changing from soft to solid food, for it is necessary that his introduction to the new texture be gradual. To start, a bit of junior food may be combined with a strained food of the same flavor and then the proportion of junior food gradually increased. These foods are so good in flavor and attractive in appearance that children take to them easily, however.

A grand thing about the junior foods is that they help you teach the child at an early age to enjoy a complete meal, combining a main dish, vegetable and dessert, for you have the makings of well balanced meals in the variety of junior foods. Then in a few months when it is time to start teaching the child to eat a few grown-up foods, you may supplement the junior foods with the more easily digested items from the family table. You will find the following menus helpful in planning your toddler's daily diet.

Sweetest Corn is Served From the Home Garden

The one and only reason for not growing sweet corn in the home garden is because the garden is too small. Otherwise sweet corn is the most desirable of vegetables for the home garden. This is true because sweet corn is always best when eaten immediately after harvesting, because the quality and flavor deteriorate rapidly after the ears are pulled from the plants. The higher the temperature, the greater the deterioration. Isn't this a sufficient reason why there should be a corn patch in every vegetable garden?

A patch of six rows, each 15 feet long, need not occupy more than a 15 foot square. In normal seasons, planted to quality strains, it should yield 120 to 180 ears.

Corn will grow in any well-worked soil but the best corn requires the best soil. Apply a balanced plant food at the rate of 4 pounds to 100 square feet, raked into the top soil before sowing corn. Well-drained, warm soil is to this vegetable's taste with constant moderate moisture. It does not like waterlogged soil.

Corn is a warm weather crop. In cold, wet springs there is often difficulty with seed rotting after it is sown and it has to be replanted. It is wisest to be in no great hurry to get corn planted, as greater speed of growth will be made in warm days and nights.

The time-honored system of planting corn was in hills, three or four stalks to a hill, the hills about three feet apart each way. With the smaller growing corn planting in rows, sowing at the rate of five or six kernels to the foot, planted about 2 inches deep to insure plenty of plants and then thinning them to 8 or 12 inches apart in the rows is a better plan and produces more ears in a small garden.

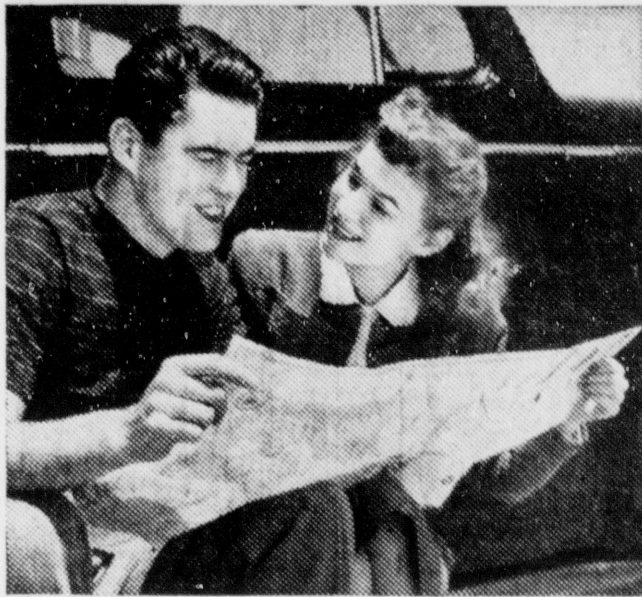

Corn needs to be hilled up because of the auxiliary roots that start above the surface of the soil at the lower joints which nature provides for the anchoring of the plant. Hilling up encourages the formation of these roots and enables them to take hold of the soil more quickly and firmly.

Planting corn in squares of at least four rows so the pollen will get the freest possible distribution and produce the fullest ears with the most kernels on the cob is the best plan. Whichever way the wind blows pollen will be blown through the square patch. Each silk must have its pollen to produce a kernel.

Corn responds to hoeing more quickly than most other vegetables and the combination of warm weather, a fair amount of moisture and good hoeing sends it spinning.

Treats Out Of Trifles

By Frances Lee Barton

IT'S easy to make a mountain out of a mole hill if you are pessimistic by nature. It's just as easy to make a treat out of a trifle—even though you assure your friends that "you never were a good cook." Follow this simple recipe carefully and you'll prepare something surprisingly delicious. Call it a "Gelatin Trifle" if you wish. Your guests will assure you it is a "Treat."

Gelatin Trifle
1 package lemon-flavored gelatin; 1 package strawberry-flavored gelatin; 2 pints hot water; 1 cup diced canned pineapple; 12 marshmallows, finely cut; lady fingers or strips of cake; canned pineapple fingers; 1 cup cream, whipped.

Dissolve each package of gelatin in 1 pint of hot water. Turn into shallow pans. Chill until firm. Cut in cubes. Combine lemon-flavored gelatin cubes and pineapple. Combine strawberry-flavored gelatin cubes and marshmallows. Line large serving dish alternately with lady fingers and pineapple fingers. Place layer of lemon gelatin mixture in serving dish, then layer of strawberry gelatin mixture; repeat, finishing with layer of strawberry gelatin mixture. Top with whipped cream. Garnish with gelatin cubes, if desired. Serves 10 to 12.

necessary, also bend the sides inward put on the date and the name of the can be pasted on. But for tin cans over, because the paste will not hold to fit the jar.

Next, check to see that you have enough lids in good condition to go around. Glass lids can be used over and over, unless they are cracked or chipped. Metal lids with a porcelain lining can also be used, unless the edges are dented or the linings are loose.

Jar rubbers of good quality are extremely important in the successful use of glass jars. So it's best to get new rubbers each year, and also to replace the gaskets on the automatic, self, or vacuum-sealing type of jars. Make sure you're getting good quality rubbers by doubling a ring together and pressing the fold with the fingers. A good rubber will not crack under this treatment, and it can also be stretched twice its length and returned to its original shape.

If you have a sealing machine and use tin cans, now is the time to get this year's supply. Certain foods require cans with a special kind of enamel lining. The C enamel, identified by its dull finish and light-gold color, must be used to keep some vegetables from turning dark. Use C enamel for corn, lima beans, kidney beans.

The other type of enamel finish on tin cans is called sanitary enamel, fruit enamel, or R enamel (it's used for canning most red foods.) This enamel has a deep gold color and a brighter finish than the C enamel. Use it for beets, all kinds of berries, cherries, cranberries, pimientos, plums, pumpkin, and squash.

While planning the number of jars or cans you'll need it's well to remember that certain sizes are recommended for certain foods. When there is a thick mixture of food in a large container, it's hard to get the center heated to the temperature necessary for killing all the organisms that cause spoilage. And by the time the center portion is hot, that near the outer surface is overcooked and mushy. So it's best to use pint size jars or No. 2 cans for corn, peas, and snap beans. Other vegetables, fruits, and meats may be canned in pint or quart jars and No. 2, 2½, or 3 cans.

Neatly labeled cans are the pride of every homemaker. While checking the cans or jars, it's easy enough to get the labels ready to put on. Then on canning day all you have to do is food. For glass jars use gummed labels or cut small slips of paper that enough to go around the can and lap, writes on either tin or glass.

"Dave" Landreth Thinks He Will Select Naval Academy Boy To Do Hurling

PHILA. IX TO PLAY HERE

19th Ward Republican Club Has Won Ten of 15 Games Played This Year

This evening, the 19th Ward Republican Club from Philadelphia will play Landreth's Seeds at Landreth Ball Park.

The 19th Ward has had a ball club for six seasons and during this period they have played not only the leading independent teams in this section of the state, but also the members of the Quaker City League and the Philadelphia City League. Fifteen games have been played this year and they have been victorious ten times.

The members of the club are products of various schools and colleges as well as independent players, and several have had experience in organized baseball ranks. The "Warders," as they are nicknamed, are dependable fielders with plenty of hitting power, and a good pitching staff composed of Barnes, Martin, Gregg, and Krobalk. The catching is handled by Budewig, and the infield is composed of Anderson, Small, Sornick and Furtak. The outfield is patrolled by Bennett, Dubyk and Ceaser.

Manager Landreth may start Jerry Brucher, formerly of the U. S. Naval Academy, or may fall back on the old standby, Al Cary.

This game should be a good contest and as the "farmers" are playing first-class ball there should be a good crowd on hand when the game is called at 6:15.

BACHOFER PUZZLES VOLTZ, SCORE, 4 TO 1

The stock of the Voltz-Texaco nine took a tumble last evening on Leedom's field as it was trimmed by the Tullytown team, 4-1, in a thrilling match. The defeat enabled the Edgely team to move into a deadlock with Voltz for second place.

Failure to solve the slants of "Pinky" Bachofer who held them to three hits caused the defeat of the rancorers. This coupled with the wildness of "Shackles" Shackleton who passed six batters.

The winning team made seven hits off Shackleton, two coming from the bat of Keyniak and one a double by Henry Clay which accounted for two runs.

ODD FELLOWS BLANK THE CHEMICAL MIXERS

The Odd Fellows upset the apparent last evening. With the Rohm and Haas team headed for first place in the Bristol Suburban League, the Oddies who until last night had won but one game, handed the chemical workers a nice coat of whitewash. Final score was: Odd Fellows, 9; Rohm and Haas, 0.

There was nothing odd about the victories of the Radcliffe street team for they hit the cover off the ball, making a total of ten hits, four being for extra bases. Jake Praul helped the Oddies' cause with a double and triple.

Milt Jones again did the twirling for the victors and besides blanking the Maple Beach team gave up but three hits, two going to Jesse Vanzant. In his last three games, Jones has allowed but two runs and three hits, pitching two shutouts and two no-hitters.

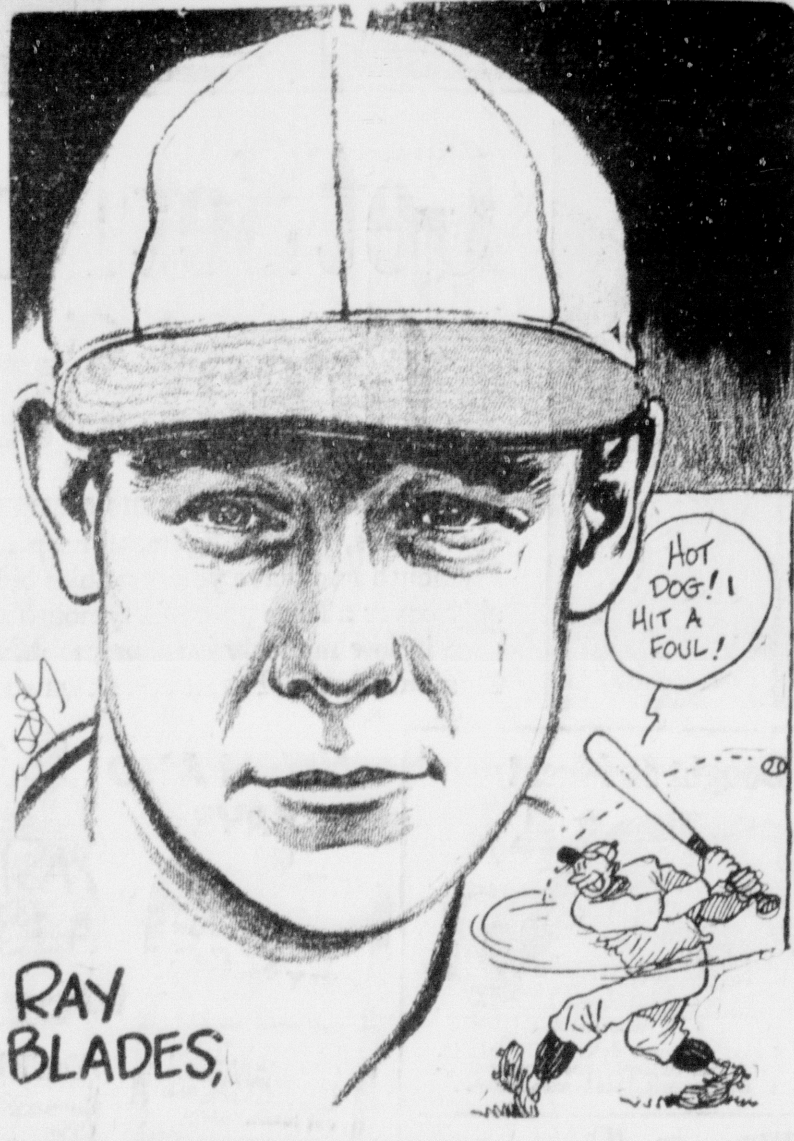

Paul Cervellero received the hum-busting from the Odd Fellows' batsmen and he survived the entire match.

DIAMOND TEAM ENDS ITS LOSING STREAK

CORNWELLS, June 12—The losing streak of the Diamond team was halted last evening when it counted a 7-2 triumph over the Cornwells A. A. club on the Bensalem High School field.

Hawkins led the Diamond assault on Nevil, the Cornwells' moundsman, getting two out of three. Joe Antonelli eluded a home run with two on base in the first inning.

This tilt was played after much difficulty, the Diamond team having been notified of the game being called off, and then the Cornwells team putting in an appearance and wanting to play.

CROYDON AND EDGELY BATTLE TO A DEADLOCK

EDGELY, June 12—Two of the leading clubs in the Bristol Suburban League, Croydon Y. M. A. and the Edgely A. C. battled to a 1-1 deadlock here last evening before a large crowd.

The game was a masterpiece hurling of the Stan Dick, of the Edgelyites, and "Herm" Puma, fast-ball artist for the Ys. Dick gave up four hits to the Y's batsmen while the best Edgely team could get off Puma was two.

Dick whiffed eleven batters, three more than Herman. Both allowed one pass. With the exception of the inning in which the runs were scored, neither team was a serious threat to one another.

FALLS WINS OPENER OF "TITLE" SERIES

NEWTOWN, June 12—Stan Felkner and Bill Shedge shared the spotlight as the heroes in the Fallsington Falcons' 2-0 triumph over the Newtown Indians in the opener of the "best-out-of-three" game series to determine the champions of the Lower Bucks County League.

Felkner produced the hit that accounted for both Fallsington runs in the sixth inning off Al Driver, Newtown hurler, while Shedge pitched two hit balls in shutting out the Indians to chalk up the decision.

While Felkner and Shedge were taking their bow in the limelight, the "goat" of yesterday's tilt played on Pickering Field here, was Ed Frehafer, Newtown third sacker. His two base wild throw of Art Driscoll's grounder paved the way for both Fallsington runs.

AL STOVER TO PITCH

Jesse Vanzant Will Do The Receiving For The Bristol Team

The Spartans, a colored aggregation from Burlington, will furnish the opposition to Johnny Mulholland's Bristol A. A. team tonight on Leedom's field. Game is scheduled to begin at 6:30 o'clock sharp.

To date, the A. A. has won five and lost two. Four of the victories have been on the road while the other was captured last Wednesday evening on the home field.

Bristol is playing excellent ball, and Manager Mulholland is receiving offers for ball games in many cities. Last Sunday, when the A. A. went to Atlantic City, on one of the main streets leading to the ball field was a large banner, "Welcome, Bristol."

Manager Mulholland intends to use Al Stover, brilliant moundsman from Northeast High School, against the Burlington team, with Jesse Vanzant doing the receiving.

Earlier in the season, Stover blanked the Spartans on the latter's field. He is anxious to repeat the performance and the fans are in for a good ball game.

For achieving success in their studies, numerous graduates and students were presented with books.

Two members of the class of 1940 participated in the program in the main auditorium, the salutatory being given by Charles Duke, Philadelphia; and the valedictory by Lawrence Schmitt, Chicago, Ill.

Music was provided by the seminary orchestra, which also accompanied the student body as it sang "The Bells of St. Mary's" and the assembly in singing "The Star Spangled Banner."

The students were dismissed today for Summer vacation, returning to school the first week in September.

Messrs. John Gannon, Cedar street, and Joseph Rosenbach, Frankford, attended the commencement exercises at the Catholic High School in Bethlehem on Friday evening and spent Saturday.

SUNDAY DINNER

Suggestions

SUNNY skies, warm days, a holiday on the calendar, and the sunburned noses of the family are mute testimony that summer is here—and that Sunday, spent either indoors or out, should be a day when Mother takes a rest from the strenuous cooking of the winter months. With so many foods on the market at this season of the year that lend themselves to partial or entire cooking the day before, your Sunday menu should be arranged with this in mind.

Because of the holiday this weekend, especially attractive prices can be found for hams, frying and broiling chickens, Turkey, excellent as a food that can be cooked the day before, is also an especially good buy.

Excellent priced, and easily prepared, are cucumbers, carrots, asparagus, beans, cabbage, new potatoes and spinach for the coming week. Tomatoes, which have been high, will be much lower in price.

Strawberries also show a considerable drop in price. Fruit specials for the week include pineapple, rhubarb, oranges, bananas and apples.

Here are three menus suggested by Miss Cora Anthony of the A&P Kitchen for Sunday at different price levels:

Low Cost Dinner

Cottage Ham
Potato Patties
New String Beans, Carrots
Bread and Butter
Mixed Fresh Fruit Tart
Coffee Tea Milk

Moderate Cost Dinner

Smothered Chicken
Potato Dumplings
Buttered Broccoli
Tomato, Lettuce Salad
Bread and Butter
Cantaloupe
Coffee Tea Milk

Very Special Dinner

Cream of Cucumber Soup
Southern Fried Chicken
Fresh Peas with Parsley
Buttered New Potatoes
Biscuits and Butter
Tomato, Artichoke Heart Salad
Deep Dish Cherry Pie
Coffee Tea Milk

This Month's
STAR RECIPE

By BETTY BARCLAY

They tell us that bread is the staff of life. All right! This month we'll hoist our prize flag on the staff and give you orange bread as the winning recipe. If you would like to present your guests with bread that is different, that goes like wild-fire, and that deluges you with "won't you give me the recipe?" serve the following:

Orange Bread
(Makes 1 loaf)

1 yeast cake
1 tablespoon sugar
Let stand a few minutes. Add:
1 cup orange juice, heated to lukewarm
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon butter
1/2 cup sugar
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
3 cups flour
Beat well. Let rise until doubled in bulk. On board put:
1/2 cup flour
Knead this in with:
1/2 cup finely cut candied orange peel
Shape into a loaf. Let rise until light. Bake in a moderate oven (375° F.) for 30 to 40 minutes.

STOP HITLER NOW!

WE AMERICANS have naturally wished to keep out of this war—to take no steps which might lead us in. But—

We now know that every step the French and British fall back brings war and world revolution closer to US—our country, our institutions, our homes, our hopes for peace.

Hitler is striking with all the terrible force at his command. His is a desperate gamble, and the stakes are nothing less than domination of the whole human race.

If Hitler wins in Europe—if the strength of the British and French armies and navies is forever broken—the United States will find itself alone in a barbaric world—a world ruled by Nazis, with "spheres of influence" assigned to their totalitarian allies. However different the dictatorships may be, racially, they all agree on one primary objective: "Democracy must be wiped from the face of the earth."

The world will be placed on a permanent war footing. Our country will have to pile armaments upon armaments to maintain even the illusion of security. We shall have no other business, no other aim in life, but primitive self-defense. We shall exist only under martial law—or the law of the jungle. Our economic structure will have to be adjusted to that of our gangster competitors. We shall have to change ourselves from easy-going individuals into a "dynamic race."

"Government of the people, by the people, for the people"—if Hitler wins, this will be the discarded ideal of a decayed civilization.

Is This "Alarmism"? Then so is the challenging scream of an air-raid siren, warning civilians that death is coming from the skies. We have ample cause for deepest alarm. It should impel us, not to hysteria, but to resolute action.

It is obvious that there is no immediate danger of direct invasion of the United States. Hitler doesn't strike directly when he doesn't have to. He edges up on his major victims, approaching through the territory of small and defenseless neighbors.

We have twenty-one neighbors in this hemisphere, in addition to the colonial possessions of Britain, France, Holland and Denmark. We must not forget that however wide the Atlantic and Pacific oceans may be, the Canadian and Mexican borders are no barriers to invasion.

The Monroe Doctrine is not an automatic safety catch, securing the entrance to our hemisphere from all intruders. We have to enforce it—all the way from Greenland and Alaska to Cape Horn. Furthermore, we have to guard night and day against the manifold enemies from within. We can not ignore the fact that Trojan horses are grazing in all the fertile fields of North and South America.

The Western Hemisphere contains the richest territory for exploitation on earth today. And the international gangsters want it. They have already started the process of taking it. For many years the agents of the Nazis have been effectively at work in Latin America, gaining ground by persuasion, bribery, intimidation. They have been fighting a trade war and a political war; and what we have lately seen in Norway and Holland and Belgium proves to us that these agents are ready to fight a military war when the orders come through from home.

"Divide—and conquer!" has been the Nazi watchword in the insidious invasion of all countries. The preliminary work of division has been carried on here with devastating success.

We can and should and will devote ourselves to a vast program of defense. But we must not try to fool ourselves into thinking that security can be bought. It will be achieved only by unity of purpose among ourselves, by the spirit of sacrifice that we can summon from our own hearts and minds. Overwhelming destiny will not be stopped "with the help of God and a few Marines".

This is a job for all of us! It will take years for us to build the necessary machines and to train the men who will run them. Will the Nazis considerably wait until we are ready to fight them?

Anyone who argues that they will wait is either an imbecile or a traitor.

How long shall we wait before making it known to Hitler and the masters of all the slave states that we are vitally concerned in the outcome of this war—that we would consider a victory for them an unmitigated calamity for civilization?

Whatever our feelings about the tragic mistakes of statesmanship in England and France we know now that the free people of those nations are willing to fight with inspiring heroism to defend their freedom. We know now that such men will die rather than surrender. But the stoutest hearts can not survive forever in the face of superior numbers and infinitely superior weapons.

There is nothing shameful in our desire to stay out of war, to save our youth from the dive bombers and the flame throwing tanks in the unutterable hell of modern warfare.

But is there not an evidence of suicidal insanity in our failure to help those who now stand between us and the creators of this hell?

WE CAN HELP-- IF WE WILL ACT NOW

—before it is forever too late.

We can help by sending planes, guns, munitions, food. We can help to end the fear that American boys will fight and die in another Flanders, closer to home.

The members of our government are your servants. In an emergency as serious as this, they require the expression of your will. They must know that the American people are not afraid to cast off the hypocritical mask of neutrality, which deceives no one, including ourselves.

SEND A POSTCARD, A LETTER, OR A TELEGRAM, AT ONCE — TO THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES, TO YOUR SENATORS AND YOUR CONGRESSMEN—URGING THAT THE REAL DEFENSE OF OUR COUNTRY MUST BEGIN NOW — WITH AID TO THE ALLIES!

The United States of America is still the most powerful nation on earth—and the United States of America is YOU!

The Fifth Column

is led in this as in other countries by Nazis and Communists and their fellow travellers who are well trained in the dissemination of poisonous propaganda. Their object is to destroy national unity, to keep the United States in a state of confusion over all world issues so that we will be weak and helpless when our time comes. All Americans should beware the prevailing Nazi-Communist propaganda which attempts to capitalize our desire for peace by opposing all our moves toward national defense—sabotaging all aid to the Allies—preaching that Hitler has already won and we must meekly appease him.

COMMITTEE TO DEFEND AMERICA BY AIDING THE ALLIES

(Composed of representative Americans from all sections. Sub-committees are already in existence in eighty-five cities and towns.)
